How We Determined the Safest Internet Casinos

There are over 1,800 Internet Casinos, with more being launched every day. Because of stiff competition these casinos are becoming more and more competitive. For example, offering bonuses for signing up or even returning after a brief absence is becoming more and more common.

Of course, a casino can offer all kinds of inducements, but if it fails to delivery, then they are worthless. We decide to look for the very safest Internet casinos - ones we would recommend to our own mothers without hesitation.

We decided to include only casinos owned by large corporations. We have nothing against small businesses, but we believe that chicanery is less likely in large, solid businesses.

Next we looked for longevity. While many new casinos are great places to play they lack the test of time. We only considered casinos that had been in business at least three years for our list of the "safest" casinos. In a couple of cases we violated this rule and admitted two-year old casinos that we strong in other respects that we felt we could relax the three-years in business requirement.

We also examined the payoff rates for the casinos. Many casinos don't publish this information, and they were eliminated from contention. We selected casinos that publish their payout rates and that offer high payouts, confirmed by independent audits.

Our select group of safest casinos are all audited by independent reputable accounting firms. While this is no guarantee of safety, it certainly adds to our sense of well being.

Next, we took a look at the bonuses offered by the casinos. Each of the casinos that made our final cut offers reasonable bonuses.

We also required casinos on our list to be licensed in a reputable jurisdiction. For more on the criteria we used, see the section - The Safest Countries.

Our casinos had to have untarnished reputations. While we know that many player originated complaints are unfair, we followed the adage that where there is fire there is smoke and avoided casinos with large numbers of complaints.

With these criteria, we knew we would find only the largest, most reputable online casinos.

We found what we think are certainly several of the world's safest online casinos.

We admit to some subjectivity, in that we picked casinos where we have played and have had good experiences.

Please note that we are not affiliated with any of these casinos. Most web sites that recommend online casinos are affiliates of the casinos and are paid a portion of the money lost by players. While our recommendations are somewhat subjective, they are in no way influenced by any compensation received from the casinos we recommend. We certainly would not recommend a casino where we are paid a percentage of your losses. Besides, if you use our system, you won't have very many losses.

Insured Casinos

Some casinos have outside insurance underwriting the deposits of their customers.

This insurance is offered by E-cash Direct Limited, a United Kingdom company.

The insurance is backed by a surety bond written by an A rated (A.M. Best rating) insurance company - Indemnity Insurance Company of North America.

The bond is written in the aggregate amount of U.S. $2.5 million, with a per customer sub-limit of U.S. $100 thousand.

The detail of the surety bond is provided for informational purposes only and is not intended to be representative of coverage that may exist in any particular situation. The terms and conditions of the surety bond must be read carefully and govern the question of coverage in a particular factual scenario.

These casinos from our "Safe List" have deposit insurance: The Sands, Omni Casino and 49er.

Safest Countries for Players

A casino had to be licensed in order to make our safe list. However, we went a step further and limited the acceptable countries to Curacao, Antigua and Canada.

Curacao is a small island country that has the best reputation of all the Caribbean countries. Gaming sites in this country have worked together to make their reputations a selling point. Solid business practices, a history of stability, and innovative technology keep Curacao above the competition.

A few years back, a Curacaon based sportsbook was on the verge of bankruptcy. What happened? Seven-year industry leader VIP Sport bought them out and no player lost money.

Though gaming sites in Antigua do not have the solid history of working together that Curacao's books do, this country's expensive license fees, history of reliability, and long-term popularity have helped its leading sportsbooks remain among the best capitalized in the world. For the most part, fraudulent sportsbooks don't have the capital to purchase an operating license here, so they head elsewhere instead.

Needless to say, Canada has an impeccable reputation and its licensees are a cut above the norm

Which countries should be avoided?

Costa Rica, Dominica, Margarita Island (Venezuela), Nicaragua, Bahamas, Panama, Honduras, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, St. Kitts, Grenada, Madagascar, Haiti, Aruba, St. Marten, St. Vincent.
